DOUNE CASTLE

Doune, Central Region

King Robert II (1371-1390), grandson of Robert the Bruce and first Stewart monarch of Scotland, lived to the age of seventy-four, and his eldest son did not inherit the crown until he was in his mid-fifties. By this time Robert III (1390-1406) was both a mental and physical cripple. The man already in control of the government was one of the king's younger brothers Robert Stewart, Earl of Menteith and Fife and, after 1398, Duke of Albany. He served as Governor of the Realm during the last two years of his father's reign then took up the title again upon his brother's death in 1406, holding it for the remaining fourteen years of his life. The duke was an ambitious, competent politician and it is very likely that he wanted the crown for his own branch of the Stewart family. In 1402 his brother's eldest son David, Duke of Rothesay and heir to the throne, died in mysterious circumstances while under detention on Albany's orders. From this time onwards only the young King James (the boy who gazed upon Tantallon — stood between the Duke and the throne. But the lad was a captive in England, safe from his uncle's grasp.

Doune was built by Duke Robert at the heart of his Menteith earldom sometime towards the close of the fourteenth century. The narrow neck of land between the confluence of the River Teith and Ardoch Burn was well selected: there had possibly been an earlier castle on the site and the Romans, who knew as well as anyone how to choose a defensive position, had constructed a fort one hundred metres or so to the north-west of the location favoured by Albany. Since the living moats around Doune form less impenetrable barriers than, for example, those at Threave, the castle was further protected by earth ramparts to the north and south. There may also once have been an outer curtain wall around the whole building. The strategic positioning of Doune was also important. The Teith runs from the Firth of Forth deep into the Highlands, providing one of the chief highways between the nation's capital and the north-west. By constructing a fortress astride this route, Albany was guarding access to the territory controlled by his nephew Donald, Lord of the Isles. Doune was also well placed to oversee the lines of communication running north-east from Glasgow and Dumbarton, along the Highland line, to Perth and Aberdeen.

Doune is an unusual castle, built at a time of transition in fortification design and therefore incorporating features of several different styles. Furthermore, its imposing bulk is extremely well preserved, having undergone extensive restoration in late Victorian times. The Historic Buildings and Monuments Directorate presents the castle with its customary balance of information and imagination, including a slide and music presentation in one of the castle's vaults. This happy combination of factors guarantees that a visit to Doune is well worthwhile.

THE CASTLE

The first thing to remember about Doune is that it was never finished. The original plan may well have been for a quadrangle of buildings within a high encircling curtain wall; but the latter, if it was ever built, has been pulled down and within it only the northern range of buildings was completed. We are left with what looks like two tower houses, linked by a Great Hall surmounting vaulted cellars, and a freestanding wall to the rear enclosing a trapezium-shaped courtyard. The northern section of the castle was built first. It closed the neck between the river and its tributary, afforded immediate defensibility for the site, and provided accommodation for the duke and his retinue. The large windows in the southern curtain wall suggest that Albany planned eventually, perhaps when he had the full resources of the crown at his command, to erect an even more palatial residence. As it turned out, he died before he could realise his dreams, and those of his son Duke Murdoch were cut short by the return of James I from involuntary exile.

The larger of the two towers is that on the left as one faces the castle. It is a massive construction, almost thirty metres high, with walls three metres thick. The five storeys and garret contained the gatehouse, two halls and a number of smaller chambers. It is topped with attractive corbelled bartizans, or small turrets, which may well have been added in the sixteenth century to give the building a less bleak appearance. Notable features are the large yett, the rectangular protrusion on the eastern wall, which houses with curious economy both chimney flues and latrine chutes, a rounded tower beside the entrance and the restored Lord's Hall on the first floor. There is a school of thought which holds that Albany had so little confidence in the trustworthiness of his garrison, mercenary or otherwise, that he designed his part of the castle so that it could be held against attack from within as well as without. It is true that the tower's principal entrance is above a doubly defended stone stairway from the courtyard, but there are other ways in (notably from the wall head and through a door from the Great Hall). And the tower has no independent water supply. It is unlikely, therefore, that it could have held out for long if the rest of the fortress had been in hostile hands. Moreover, Albany's largely successful career, spanning several decades, suggests that he was quite capable of surrounding himself with loyal servants. Though the 'paranoid' interpretation of the castle's design has obvious appeal, it does not really accord with the facts.

The Great Hall now has a somewhat spartan appearance, although when filled with feasting guests and lit by innumerable candles and firelight it must have looked altogether more grand. The lord sat on a raised dais at the east end, flooded with light from an oriel window in the southern wall. A door behind him led to the smaller hall and his private accommodation. In the wall to his left was a latrine within easy reach of those sitting at the high table. The wall opposite him was hidden by wooden screens, behind which a door led to the servery and kitchens. These occupied the first floor of the second, or Retainers' hall. Above the servery there is large bedroom supposed to have been used by Mary Queen of Scots. The kitchen is distinguished by wide serving hatches, not unlike those at Elcho and resembling a modern factory canteen.

Doune is clearly more than a tower house. And though security was crucial in its design, we have also moved away from the enceinte castle of the high Middle Ages; internally at least there is a more homely feel about Doune than about earlier strongholds, which may be why, perhaps, three monarchs in succession made a gift of it to their queens.

HUNTING AND KNOTTED SHEETS

As we saw when looking at Caerlaverock, the career of Albany's son Murdoch did not long survive the return to Scotland of James I. In 1424 Doune was taken over by the crown and for several generations it served as a sort of Scottish Camp David, a place where the monarchs could go to get away from the hassle of court and enjoy the excellent local hunting. The resident castle captain was also keeper of the forest nearby. Mary of Gueldres, Margaret of Denmark and Margaret Tudor, the respective wives of James II, III and IV, all enjoyed the castle's secure comfort. In the sixteenth century it suffered a three-day siege when its Keeper, Sir James Stewart (a descendant of Duke Robert), refused to hand it over to the Earl of Lennox, who was acting as regent for the young James VI. The castle was soon repaired, however, and the Stewarts retained their charge. King James, for whom hunting was almost an obsession, enjoyed the facilities of Doune and the surrounding countryside much as his predecessors had done.

Doune remained with its hereditary keepers after the removal of the Scottish court to England in 1603. In 1580 the Stewarts had acquired the Earldom of Moray through marriage, and when in 1984 the Secretary of State for Scotland took over Doune on a 999-year lease, it was with the Earl of Moray that the agreement was made.

Only in the 1745-6 Jacobite rebellion did Doune once again come into national prominence. It was taken by the followers of Bonnie Prince Charlie, garrisoned by a nephew of Rob Roy and used as a prison. Among those held in the castle was the author John Home, whose tragedy Douglas is reputed to have drawn from its first-night audience the famous cry: 'Whaar's yer Willie Shakespeare noo?' History has given its answer. Although Home's reputation as a leading dramatist may not have endured, he is still remembered as a daring escapologist. One night he and some other prisoners escaped in classic schoolboy fashion from the Retainers' Tower by scaling down a rope of knotted bedding.

CRICHTON CASTLE

Crichton Village, Lothian Region

The direct route from Newcastle to Edinburgh proceeds from Lauderdale through a broad pass between the Moorfoot and Lammermuir Hills, known as the Middleton Gap. Two castles once commanded this important gateway to the capital. One, Borthwick, has been turned into an hotel; the other, Crichton, is now just an imposing ruin.

The castle has to be approached on foot, along a track leading south-east from the small car park by Crichton church. The most impressive view of the fortress though is to be had from the other side of the valley cut by the river Tyne. Crichton rests in august isolation on the hillside. Bracken-strewn slopes rise gently behind it, and sheep safely graze on the rich grass extending to the castle's broken walls. The scene would serve as a poignant illustration to the first chapter of the Book of Ecclesiastes: 'What profit hath a man of all his labour which he taketh under the sun? One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh.'

THE CASTLE

Crichton began life as an ordinary tower house, built in the late fourteenth-century by John de Crichton. Although a simple structure, the early castle was imposing. Its thick walls, enclosing an area of about 150 square metres, rose some twenty-five metres above the ground. The lower storeys were vaulted and held the usual arrangement of store rooms, prison, kitchen and hall. A walled barmkin, part of which can be identified in the north wall of the Mait[illegible] interview with Elizabeth took place in London, in the presence of both Cecil, Elizabeth's adviser, and Dudley, her favourite. The Scottish point of view on the subject of the succession had already been put to Elizabeth in a humble letter from Lord James, before Mary even arrived in Scotland. Ratification of the Treaty of Edinburgh was to be given in exchange for Elizabeth's acknowledgement that Mary stood next in line to the throne, after herself and her lawful issue. Maitland pointed out on behalf of Mary that this meant that she could not ratify the Treaty of Edinburgh as it now stood, because the terms of the Treaty called on to surrender not only her present claim to the English throne, but also all further claims after the death of Elizabeth and her problematic offspring. In reply, Elizabeth showed herself nothing if not friendly towards the queen of Scots; although her first impulse was to concentrate on the vexed subject of the treaty ('I looked for another message from the Queen your sovereign') once she realized that the Scots lords, as well as Mary, were in earnest on the subject of succession, she gave herself over to a frank discussion of the whole question.

In the course of this, Elizabeth even went so far as to vouchsafe the information that she herself preferred Mary to all her rivals: she knew of no better right than Mary's, and no one who was strong enough to keep Mary from the throne. At the same time she positively declined to give Mary the acknowledgement she desired. The reason she gave was the impossible burden which it would lay on her own relations with Mary. 'The desire is without example,' said Elizabeth, 'to require me in mine own life, to set my winding sheet before my eyes. Think you that I could love my own winding sheet? Princes cannot like their own children, those that should succeed unto them. . . . How then shall I, think you, like my cousin, being declared my Heir Apparent?' She also put forward a more practical, less personal reason of her own safety: 'I know the inconstancy of the people of England, how they ever mislike the present government and have their eyes fixed upon that person that is next to succeed.' And she quoted in Latin: 'They are more prone to worship the rising than the setting sun.' Elizabeth went on to describe her own experiences as a focus of opposition during the reign of ~~Mary Tudor~~. With these personal revelations, and an unresolved situation, Maitland had to be content. However, Elizabeth made one concession in that she agreed to accept a certain modification of the treaty, so that Mary should not have to sign away her claim, beyond the period of Elizabeth's life and that of her lawful offspring. Elizabeth also suggested that Maitland and Cecil should correspond privately on the subject, although under the supervision of the two queens;

the situation, if fluid, seemed also full of promise. [illegible] this auspicious atmosphere Maitland returned to Scotland at the end of September.

The truth was that Elizabeth was in a more complicated situation apropos her successor than might appear from a first glance at the Tudor family tree. Mary Stuart, the obvious successor, had as we have seen been theoretically debarred by the will of Henry VIII, which precluded foreigners from succeeding. Maitland, in the course of his mission, did not enter into controversy concerning the will of Henry VIII, but merely made the point that Henry VII, in wedding Margaret Tudor to James IV, had not intended to deny her the succession; Elizabeth herself, by saying that she knew of no better right than Mary's, showed that she was not allowing her father's will to enter her calculations. But in 1561 Mary was extremely unpopular in England, being considered virtually a Frenchwoman and a Guise, as well as a Catholic, and she was especially disliked by the English Parliament, which was strongly Puritan in tone; Elizabeth, in her personal favour towards Mary, was certainly in contradiction to the majority of her subjects at this period. There were other claimants, whom the English as a body might be thought to prefer: Margaret, countess of Lennox, mother of Darnley, was a grand-daughter of Henry VII; although her claim was inferior to Mary's as she descended from Margaret Tudor's second marriage, yet she was an English subject, which gave her an advantage in some English eyes. On the other hand her legitimacy could be questioned, since her father Archibald Angus had divorced her mother on grounds of pre-contract. Then there was the twenty-five-year-old Henry Hastings, earl of Huntingdon, who descended from the countess of Salisbury, niece of Edward IV, and last representative of the Plantagenets. His strength was in his sex – in 1560 the Spanish ambassador de Quadra reported: 'the cry is that they do not want any more women rulers.'[18] He was also Dudley's brother-in-law, he was a Protestant, and was lieutenant for Leicestershire where he had strong connections.

Henry VII

By far the most serious counter-claimant was Lady Catherine Grey, the twenty-three-year-old sister of the ill-fated Lady Jane Grey. Catherine Grey, like Mary Stuart, was a great-grand-daughter of Henry VII, but she descended from his young daughter Mary Tudor who had married the Duke of Suffolk. By 1561 Lady Catherine had already led a checkered matrimonial career, by which she had incurred the spiteful enmity and personal dislike of Queen Elizabeth. Her first marriage to Lord Pembroke's son was dissolved. She then secretly married Lord Hertford in late 1560, but without the queen's permission, which had been made necessary by an act of 1536. In the summer of 1561, her obvious pregnancy forced her to admit to the marriage, as a result of which both she and Hertford were clapped in the Tower. On 24 September, at roughly the same moment as Maitland's mission to Elizabeth on behalf of Mary, she gave birth to a son, Edward Seymour. This piece of unwelcome parturition roused Elizabeth to a pitch of vindictive fury. She referred to the unpleasant subject bitterly to Maitland when she alluded to those who, by showing themselves not to be barren, had declared to the world that they were more worthy of the throne than herself or Mary. Elizabeth had both mother and father cross-examined, and as they could provide no witnesses of their wedding or find the priest involved, the marriage was finally declared invalid in May 1562. Despite this stern lesson in the unwisdom of illicit romance, the unhappy Lady Catherine managed to have sufficient contact with her husband within the confines of the Tower to give birth to a second son Thomas in February 1563. By the findings of Elizabeth's commission, both these sons were of course illegitimate, somewhat reducing Lady Catherine's desirability as a candidate for the throne.

Nevertheless in the 1560s it was Lady Catherine who was regarded as the most likely successor to Elizabeth by the English Parliament, on the grounds that she was Protestant and she was English. So strong were her claims thought to be that Philip II of Spain is even supposed to have worked out a scheme by which he would have abducted her, in 1560, and married her off to that famous putative bridegroom Don Carlos, in order to establish her immediately on the throne of England, on the grounds that she was legitimate, and Elizabeth was not.[19] However, when Lady Catherine was revealed to be a Protestant, Philip lost interest in her. Mary Stuart on the other hand was the subject of various English attacks at this period. 'Garboduc' attacked her right to succeed as an alien; in the Parliament of January 1563 Sadler made a speech against Mary the foreigner succeeding to the throne: 'Our common people and the very stones in the streets should rebel against it.' In October 1562, when Elizabeth was gravely ill with smallpox, de Quadra reported that there was absolutely no certainty about the succession, the Protestants being divided between Catherine Grey and Huntingdon, and the Catholics between Mary and Margaret Lennox. Under the circumstances it is easy to understand why Mary believed that the personal favour of Elizabeth constituted her best hope of being recognized. Mary believed that Elizabeth could and would override the will of Henry VIII. Elizabeth's dislike of Catherine was blighting her chances. Elizabeth's love of Mary – if it was sufficiently stimulated – might be the making of her fortunes. Throughout the autumn and spring, Mary devoted all her efforts to bringing about the personal meeting between the two queens, by which she felt certain she could win the all-important affections of Elizabeth.

Mary was not deluding herself on the subject. In the opinion of one of Elizabeth's modern biographers, Sir John Neale, 'There is no resisting the conclusion that Elizabeth was prepared virtually to assure Mary of the succession, assure her of it on conditions that are easy to guess: no league with France, friendship with England, an acceptable marriage, and probably ultimate conversion to Protestantism'.[20] The first three of these conditions would not have been difficult to fulfil for a Mary so set on being acknowledged as heiress, and the last one lay only in the sphere of possibilities. The important point, which Mary had ably grasped, was that she herself should inspire Elizabeth with confidence, so that she would be armoured by Elizabeth's favour against the hostility of the English Parliament, and presumably many of the English Protestants. By far the best way of inspiring this confidence was to meet the English queen face to face: had she not won the golden opinions of Throckmorton? Surely it would be no more difficult to win the affections of Elizabeth, with whom she had in common not only their cousinly relationship, but also the mutual problems of government in the hands of the weaker sex. As she had told Bedford, when she was first widowed: 'We are both in one isle, both of one language, both the nearest kinswoman that each other hath, and both Queens'.[21] In view of Mary's known success in the sphere of personal contact, her steady aim to meet Elizabeth must be regarded not as the caprice of an inquisitive woman, but as a sound piece of political reasoning.

Once Maitland was back in Scotland, he corresponded with Cecil for the rest of the autumn and winter, according to Queen Elizabeth's suggestion. At the same time Elizabeth herself sent Sir Peter Mewtas to Scotland, officially to greet Mary on her arrival in Scotland, unofficially to demand ratification of the treaty. Mary diplomatically suggested in reply that as so many matters in the treaty had concerned her late husband, the whole subject should be considered anew: in November she put forwar the names of new commissioners. All Mary's letters to Elizabeth throughout this period have the same attitude of friendliness which would see positively sugary to our ears, were it not for the high stakes which were t be won by cajolery. Mary means 'nothing more earnestly than continu ance of tender amity and good intelligence' between the two of them; sh finds that Mewtas has 'so wisely and discreetly uttered and expressed th sincerity of your [Elizabeth's] affection towards us'.[22]

Elizabeth still evinced a personal desire that the whole affair should b conducted secretly, or through the medium of Randolph; thus on 2

The witnesses to the codicil were John Wilkinson & John Hill.

Meade, 15.

[These wills carry the pedigree of Edward Rawson, secretary of the Massachusetts Colony from 1650 to 1686, back two generations. They give his father David Rawson of London, and his grandfather Edward Rawson of Colebrook. For a memoir of Secretary Rawson, with a portrait, and a genealogy of his descendants, see REGISTER, vol. iii. pp. 201–8 and 297–330; also The Rawson Family, editions of 1849 and 1875.—EDITOR.

In Lipscomb's Buckingham is the following mention of the Rawson family. In 1540 Sir John Rawson is Grand Prior in Ireland of the Knights Hospitallers. Sir Michael Stanhope, Knt., knighted at Hampton Court, 37 Henry VIII., governor of Hull, &c., married Anne, daughter of Nic. Rawson, Esq., of Aveley, Essex. Ob. 20 Feb. 1587. The ancestress of the noble families of Earls Stanhope, Chesterfield and Harrington. Richard Rawson, LL.B., was presented rector of Beaconsfield, 26 July, 1525, by John Scudamore, Esq. He was Canon of Windsor and Archdeacon of Essex; and rebuilt the parsonage here where his arms remained in 1728. He died 1543. James Rawson, inst. vicar of Wingrave, 8 August, 1508. Edward Rawson, inst. Rector of Hedsor, 13 May, 1664; also vicar of Wooburn. Edward Rawson, presented vicar of Wooburn, 5 Feb. 1662. John Rawson, presented vicar of Turville, 5 Dec. 1532. V. i. p. 265, 479; v. iii. p. 195, 536, 580, 637, 631. (See also Maskell's History of Allhallows Barking, in London, p. 47.)

The wife of Edward Rawson of Colebrooke, mother of David Rawson of London, and grandmother of Edward Rawson of Boston, Mass., married for her second husband Thomas Woodward of Lincoln's Inn.—T. M.]

WILLIAM RAWSON of the town of Northampton, Notary Publique, 4 May, 1603, proved 27 February, 1604. To be buried in St Gyles church, Northampton, near to the door of the pew where I use to sit. To Joane Glover my sister ten shillings and to every one of her children ten shillings apiece which I will shall be paid to her husband to their uses; and he shall have the use thereof until the said children accomplish the age of one and twenty years. To my brother Richard his children ten shillings apiece in same manner and form as is above rehearsed concerning my sister Glover's children. To Mary my eldest daughter, one "gymold Ringe" of gold, with a sharp diamond in it. To Elizabeth my daughter a little gold ring enamelled that the lady Cromwell gave her mother, with the poesie (Decreui in aeternum) in it, which rings are in the keeping of Martha now my wife. I will and charge these my said children to keep the said rings so long as they shall live in remembrance of their good mother, my late wife Francys. My children William, Mary, Thomas, Elizabeth and Timothy. To son James my greatest silver bowl; to William my second silver bowl; to Thomas my best silver salt parcel gilt; to Timothy a stone pot garnished with silver double gilt and six silver spoons which I bought of Mrs Warde. My eldest daughter Mary. My three youngest children, Mary, Frances and Melior. My wife Martha, her father Christopher and mother Alice and brother Robert. My cousin William Ive. My brother-in-law Mr Francis Morgan of Kingsthorp. Son James to be executor. Hayes, 11.

RAWSON

[Although in the above will there is no direct reference to the family of Secretary Rawson, yet the mention of the names Glover and Warde has led me to save it for printing. (See will of Secretary Rawson's father, who speaks of a cousin Glover and of the Warde family.)—H. F. W.]

THOMAS BURNELL, citizen and clothworker of London, 6 July, 1661, with a codicil bearing date 19 August, 1661, proved 2 October, 1661, by the oath of Hester Burnell his widow.

Remembering the saying of St. Jerome which soundeth daily in mine ears, Surgite mortui et venite ad judicium.

If I die in London, to be buried within the chancel door of the parish church of Allhallows Barking, near Tower Hill, under the gravestone there lying where my dear brother John Burnell and his virtuous wife Mary (of worthy memory) lie buried. But if it shall please the almighty God that I shall die at Stanmore Magna then my desire is that I may be buried there in the vault within that chancel door of the said parish church where the bones of my dear deceased father and mother lie buried, at the discretion of my loving and dear wife Hester Burnell. To my she cousin Hasell, my nephew John Burnell Sen^{r}, and his three sisters, An, Katherine and Elizabeth, and to the three sons of my deceased brother William Burnell, viz: Thomas, John and Henry Burnell; also unto my sister Rewse, my two nephews John and Richard Ball and their five sisters, An, Barbara, Jane, Margaret and Elizabeth, my cousin Sarah Edlin and also my cousin William Pindar, jun^{r}, for his help for the getting in of mine estate,—to all of them the sum of thirty pounds apiece. Also I give unto my nephew John Morley, resident in New England, and to his sister-in-law, the wife of his brother Thomas Morley deceased, the sum of ten pounds apiece, and unto her son Thomas Morley, both resident in or about Hamburgh, together with all the children of my nephews John Burnell, Sen^{r}, and Thomas and Henry Burnell, lawfully begotten in wedlock, that shall be living at my death, the sum of five pounds apiece. To my loving and dear wife fifty pounds. Also unto her loving brother, Henry Wollastone, Esq. and his son Henry, my brother-in-law Robert Smyth, my nephew Doctor Richard Ball, my cousin Doctor William Pindar, my cousin Thomas Reeve, my cousin James Gough, my nephew John Burnell, sen^{r}, my cousin Doctor Coe, Bourcheirs and Rudyere, my cousins Thomas and Henry Burnell, and all their wives, also my sister Rewse, my cousin Anne Young and her sister Allett, and my cousin Sarah Edlin, widow, also unto my cousin John Ball, Esq. and my cousin William Robinson and my cousin John Cooke; also unto my cousins Doctor Trench and Doctor Deake and Doctor Winter and their wives, and old Mrs Churchman, the sometime bedle's wife of Marchant Taylor's Hall; to all the sum of six pounds apiece towards their mourning.

My copyhold land and houses in Stanmore Magna, in the County of Middlesex unto my wife for and during her natural life. Whereas I have lately purchased another house and land lying in or near upon Weald Green in the parish of Harrow upon the Hill, called or known by the name of Brookes, another field, wood ground and springs called Sander's Hill, and now both in the tenure and occupation of John Dancer; and also my present house and garden wherein I now dwell here in London, &c. &c., with five other tenements, all lying in the court or alley called Nunn's Court or Alley, in the street or parish of St. Stephens, Coleman Street, London, (and other leases, &c.);—all these to my wife for life; and then to my nephew John Burnell, Sen^{r}, my chief house and lands lying in Stanmore Magna, called and known by the name of Fiddles (and a lot of other lands there-to my said nephew for life, then to his wife, if he do marry again, and his children equally, during the natural life or second marriage of his said second wife, if he marry again, then equally among his children and their heirs forever; failing such issue, equally among the children of the three daughters of my eldest brother John Burnell long since deceased. Also, after my wife's decease, I give, &c. to my nephew Thomas Burnell, eldest son of my brother William Burnell deceased, my two thirds of the house and land he now lives in, called, &c. Buggs, for life, then to his wife and children during her life or second marriage, then to the children. To my nephew John Burnell, jun^{r} now resident in the East Indies (estate in Harrow, &c). To my nephews John and Richard Ball (the house, &c. in London). Legacies to godson Burnell Ball, son of said nephew Richard Ball, to my brother Robert Smyth, my brother Thomas Wollaston and my brother-in-law Justice Henry Wollaston.

The witnesses to the will were Robert Fenn, Peter Whitinge and William Pindar, Jun^{r}. It was published by the said Thomas Burnell for his will 19 August, 1661.

In the codicil he names his nephew Thomas Burnell, citizen and haberdasher of London, nephew Henry Burnell, citizen and leatherseller of London and his three daughters, Elizabeth, Mary and Barbara, nephew John Burnell, citizen and clothworker of London, now in the East Indies, nephew William Pindar, citizen and clothworker of London and niece Elizabeth Gough, wife of James Gough.

The witnesses to the codicil were John Mosse, Notary Public, and Edward Bullocke. May, 150.

[Stanmore Magna lies at the extremity of the County of Middlesex, towards Hertfordshire, from which county John Morley probably came, as shown by his will, wherein he disposes of real estate in Cheshunt, Hertfordshire. John Burnell, Esq., was lord of the manor of Stanmore, and died in 1605. His widow Barbara was lady of the manor for twenty-six years. After her death it was for some time the property of her son Thomas Burnell, Esq., as we learn from Lyson's Environs of London (vol. 3), in which also are given the arms of this family:—Sable on a bend Or three escallops of the field.—H. F. W.]

John Astwood, of Milford in the Colony of Newhaven in New England, 27 June, 1654, proved 31 August, 1654, by his son Samuel Astwood.

To my loving wife Sarah Astwood all my estate in New England whatsoever it be in household stuff or cattle or debts, to be disposed by her as she shall see meet for her own proper use. Of my estate here in England, in Abutley, I do give my brother William Astwood ten pounds sterling within one year after my decease. To my loving mother five pounds sterling and the use of two rooms of my house so long as she please. To my brother Robert Astwood do I give five pounds sterling within two years after my decease. To John Rute do I give ten shillings after my decease. The rest of my property to my executor. My son Samuel to be sole executor. The witnesses were Nicholas Hudley and Robert Swan (by mark). Alchin, 505.

Marriage License granted to Thomas Spencer, gent., of the City of Westminster, bachelor, 30, and Penelope Filliall, of the City of London, 30, widow of Westerne Filliall, draper, deceased,—at St. Peter's, Paul's Wharf,—24 Sept. 1623. B. (Col. Chester's Mar. Lic.)

[This Thomas Spenser must have been a brother of John Spencer whose will, bearing date 1 August 1637 and proved more than eleven years afterwards at Salem, Massachusetts, mentioned a nephew John Spencer, whom he constituted his heir, a brother Thomas Spencer, a cousin Ann Knight, a cousin Gardner, a brother Nicholas Kidwell and a sister Rachel Kidwell. This will gives us the baptismal name of the wife of John Treworthy, who (says Savage) was married at Newbury 15 January, 1646. I note a connection between the Chadbournes and both the Treworthy family and the Spencer family of Piscataqua. Some of our friends in Maine may assist us here.—Henry F. Waters.]

FISHER

8 June, 1673; Rebecca, 22 Oct. 1676; Thomas, 31 Aug. 1678; Matthias, 26 May, 1682; John, 9 March, 1687-8.

Evans, Matthias, house carpenter; m. 1st, Patience Mede, 28 : 2 : 1669; she d. 22 : 3 : 1670; he m. 2dly, Susanna —— : ch. Susanna, b. 10 : 6 : 1673; Hannah, 22 Aug. 1678; Ebenezer, 21 Jan. 1679. Mr. Evans sold James Barber of D. house and land, 26 May, 1679, and moved to Medfield; inventory, 27 Nov. 1684, £152 4s.

Farnham, John, freem. 13 May, 1640, wf. Elizabeth, ch. Jonathan, b. 16 : 11 : 1638; Hannah, 9 : 9 : 1642; Joanna, 3 : 1 : 1644.— Mr. Farnham was of Boston 2d Church, 5 June, 1650.— There was a John F. memb. 1st Chh. Boston, 19 : 12 : 1670; also one of the 1st Baptist Chh. about 1666.—The seven members who united to form the 2d Chh. in Boston (5 June 1650) were Michael Powell, James Ashwood, Christopher Gibson, John Phillips, George Davis, Michael Wills and John Farnham; all of Dorchester, except Powell, Ashwood and Davis.

There is this passage concerning a "John Farnam," perhaps the same, in Saml. Willard's "Briefe Animadversions upon the N. Eng. Anabaptists." (4to. Boston, 1681) p. 18 — " Relating to John Farnum, we have him confessing guilty in some things, acknowledging a defect, but would not have it thought wilful nor such as any church in their imperfection may not easily fall into." " It was long ere he could obtain Admission into the Church at Dorchester : & some discerning Christians ever suspected him to be such an one as he after proved. That he was deputed by them for a Deacon & yet neither the present Teacher; nor any that have been added to the Church these 20 years, either deputed or thought him fit for that office : And whereas there is but one surviving of the founders of that Church, he professeth there is never a syllable of truth in that report."

The church members seem to have given themselves a great deal of trouble about him. A " third Church meeting was held on his account, 16 Oct. 1665." In December he was up again, and again suffered to go on probation, but he grew more and more out with the brethren; and from a petition of his he appears to have been imprisoned and sentenced to be banished for heresy.

Farnworth, Joseph, freem. 14 Mar. 1638-9 : d. 12 : 11 : 1659; 1st wf. Elizabeth ——; ch. Mary, b. 30 : 1 : 1637, m. Abraham Ripley; Hannah, b. 14 : 10 : 1638, m. Simon Peck; Rebecca, b. 2 : 11 : 1639; Ruth, 3 : 4 : 1642.—Second wf. wid. Mary Long; will 2 Jan. 1659, dau. Elizabeth, wf. of John Manfield; dau. Ester, son Samuel, a minor, eldest son Joseph.

Fawer, Barnabas, 1st wf. Dinah; son Eliazar m. Mary, da. of Daniel Preston of D. 28 May, 1662; 2d wf. Grace Negoose or Negus of 1st Chh. Boston, 10 : 1 : 1643; will as in p. 305. In 1664 " Eliazer Fawer petitioned ye Court to allow him to sett vp ye trade of a Cooper in sd towne," which was granted him " provided yt hee be found sufficient in that art, to be tryed by fowre skilfull men in that trade." He had one ch; will 13 : 9 : 1665; being " bound to sea in the Good Ship Nicolas." His wid. " Mary Farre," m. Samuel Jenkins of Scituate, 6 July, 1670.

Fisher, Anthony, sen. freem. May, 1645; m. Isabel, wid. of Edward Breck, 14 : 9 : 1663, he d. intestate, 18th April, 1671, in the 80th year of his age; she d. 22 : 4 : 1673. Ensign Daniel Ffisher son of Anthony; also Nathaniel, Cornelius, and Joanna. On 5 : 3 : 1662, the town allowed Anthony Ffisher £4 " for killing vs six wolues." His residence was " in Mrs. Stoughton's ffarms within the bounds of Dorchester, but yet distant about seuen or eight miles from Dorchester meetinghouse, being neere adjacent to the towne of Dedham."—The Fisher family were heirs to the estate of elder John Wiswal, or of certain lands laid out to him " beyond the Blue Hills near Dedham, now [1737] in Stoughton." The heirs were John Fisher, Joshua Fisher, Daniel Fisher and his wf. Esther; Jeremiah Dean and Mary his wife.
